The Authority or any authorised person may, without limiting the generality of this regulation, issue infringement notices set out in Part VIII of these Regulations on serious or prolonged breaches of security or failure to rectify security lapses that may endanger the safety of civil aviation.

An infringement notice may require that the operations of a particular operator be halted until the breach has been rectified.

Part VIII—Infringement Notices.

Purpose and effect of infringement notices.

The purpose of this Part is to create a system of infringement notices for offences against these Regulations as an alternative to prosecution.

This Part does not—

- affect the liability of a person to be prosecuted for an offence if an infringement notice is not issued to the person for the offence;
- prevent the issue of two or more infringement notices to a person for an offence;
- affect the liability of a person to be prosecuted for an offence if the person does not comply with an infringement notice for the offence; or
- limit or otherwise affect the penalty that may be imposed by a court on a person convicted of an offence.

Penalty payable under infringement notice.

The penalty for an offence payable under an infringement notice issued to the person for the offence is one-fifth of the maximum penalty that a court could impose on the person for the offence.

Authorised persons may issue infringement notice.

In this regulation, "infringement notice offence" means an offence against regulations 50, 54, 55, 57 and 58.

where an authorised person has reason to believe that a person has committed an infringement notice offence, the authorised person may issue a notice, called an infringement notice, to the person for the offence.

An authorised person who knowingly improperly issues an infringement notice or who issues an infringement notice for any purpose other than to ensure aviation security commits an offence and is liable, on conviction, to a fine not exceeding twenty four currency points or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year or both.
